In the face of prohibition on July 1, 22 people have made application in Barre for liquor licenses for the coming year. The commissioners will consider the applications and they will be published according to law in a day or two. The published applications will give the date of the hearings.

Government ownership of railroads will be freely discussed at the regular meeting of the men's club in the Presbyterian church to-night at 7:30. Papers will be given for and against and a general invitation is extended to men interested in the subject. Light refreshments will be served at the close.

Ten little girl friends of Allene Barbara Gale called at her home, 7 Upland avenue, Saturday afternoon to help celebrate her fourth birthday anniversary. Games were enjoyed and delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and wafers were served, together with a birthday cake. The visitors left many beautiful presents in remembrance of the occasion.

Thomas Landi, who fell and broke his leg on North Main street near Seminary street just two days before Christmas, was able to return to his home and employment in Waterbury yesterday. His visit, which was to have been three days, resulted in a three months' stay at 380 North Main street, waiting for a broken bone of his leg to heal. Mr. Landi will resume work at his trade in the stone-sheds of that village.

Private James Jary is back in the city calling on most of the printers of Barre and many other friends before returning to his station in New York city. He left J. J. Lamb & Co.'s printing shop about eight months ago and is now attached to a debarcation hospital in New York. He was granted a five-day furlough, so took the opportunity to spend a few days here and in Montpelier, as he does not expect to be discharged from the service for several months.

Many Barre people attended in Burlington, at the college gymnasium, last night, the concert given by Alma Gluck, the famous lyric soprano. Among those leaving yesterday were: Mrs. J. Ward Carver, Miss Stella Brooks, Miss Fairfax Sherburne, Mrs. Dean Perry, Miss Georgia Towers, Mrs. W. G. Reynolds and daughter, Leone, Mrs. W. M. Holden, Miss Grace and Miss Annie Barclay, Miss Ruth Nelson, James Bennett and Willoughby Scott.

Leslie Baker, who departed from Barre in the autumn of 1915 to join the Canadian forces, returned home recently after three years and a half in the third Canadian division, and was very fortunate in the several battles in which he participated. His only wound came from a machine gun, a bullet having pierced his ankle, though it did not incapacitate him after healing. Since his departure from home his mother died a year ago at her home on Maple avenue.

Word was received yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sowles of Beckley hill that Capt. Horace Sowles, their oldest son, had arrived in Boston with the 30th division on the America. The message was sent by John Sowles, Jr., who talked with his brother from a small yacht occupied by several reporters of Boston papers. Captain Sowles has been stationed for six months, that is, since he left the United States, at base hospital 55, where his brother, Lieut. Homer Sowles, is now stationed, but who is not expected home for two months. Captain Sowles will be greeted by a new son who was born a week ago to Mrs. Sowles at the Massachusetts General hospital.

MONTPELIER

Charles Martin, Aged 74, Died in Williamstown Last Night.

Charles Martin, who had been many years a resident of Montpelier, died at the home of A. A. Reed in Williamstown during the night. The body will be brought to Montpelier for the funeral. The deceased was about 74 years of age. He was a native of Wolcott. His early life was passed in Middlesex, where he was a farmer; then he came to Montpelier and for some years was in the trucking business, after which he opened a livery stable which he operated until three years ago, when failing health caused him to give up that business. His wife, who was Etta Hill, died three years ago. Their three children died in years gone by. He leaves a sister, Mrs. H. E. Badger, living in Middlesex.

Lieut. Frank L. Corry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Corry, arrived home Monday from France, where he has been in service for a year. He was a member of the 106th field artillery, which was known as the Yale battery. He went to Buffalo for training and last year went to France, participating in the fighting in the St. Mihiel salient.

It will be of interest to Barre readers to know that the arrangements for Vermont delegations to go down Boston harbor to meet the arrival of each boat bringing Vermont soldiers in the 28th division were made by General H. T. Johnson with David Montague, who is president of the Vermont association in Boston. James Ford of this city has been down to attend the arrival of each boat, arrangements having been made by friends so that he could be on the official press boat. One of the interesting features was meeting his brother, Thomas, on one of the boats that arrived.

Dr. Frederick Fassett, who was the head of one of the hospitals in Edinburgh, Scotland, during the last year of the war, has returned to this country and is visiting Mrs. E. S. Fiske, his mother, before he goes to his home in Seattle, Wash. Dr. Fassett is an osteopathic physician and had a large practice.

F. S. Gravelin, who has been eight years superintendent of the Capital City Press, has resigned and gone to Springfield, Mass., where he expects to locate in the publishing business. His successor has not yet been selected.

John Sogorka, who was on the President Lincoln when it went down, is spending a few days' furlough at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jerome. He is now on the New Mexico. He has pictures of several of the French battlefields and fortifications taken in France, many of the American boats showing camouflage.

Frank Lamere, who has been employed by Patrick Blanchard in his shoe repairing shop, is to open a shop in the Corry block on State street.

Miss Florence Jamieson, who was recently placed on probation, was again before the court Monday afternoon, charged with breach of probation, it being alleged that she has not returned some of the articles she had taken. At first the girl would not admit taking the articles but finally when they were presented one by one to her she admitted she took them and the court has taken the matter under advisement. One of the features of the same is to ascertain whether she shall be sent to a penal institution or to a home for treatment.

Who owns the Central Power company? is the question some folks are asking. However, it does not materially interest Charles H. Thompson, who was one of the principal owners, according to a statement made by him Monday. The charter was revoked by order of the tax commissioner a few days since, probably for non-payment of the license fee. It appears that last October Mr. Thompson, as manager of the Central Power company, sold its rights to the company in Rutland of which I. M. Frost is manager; but the papers have not been completed. Those associated with Mr. Thompson have moved their field of activities to northern Vermont and, therefore, are not so much interested in the business at Middlebury; so that they did not pay the license fee. Mr. Thompson has returned from Detroit, Mich., where he held a conference with Henry Ford relative to the concern coming to Montpelier. The matter is purely one of cheap power. Mr. Ford will locate an automobile factory in New England anyway. Mr. Thompson was asked to furnish data concerning the rates of electricity developed from Vermont water-power, so that it is possible that some other Vermont town may receive the business if this section of the state does.
